Dear Mr. Bruckheimer:

All of us at the Eleventh Hour Resurrection Campaign would like to take this opportunity to express our unwavering support of your team at Jerry Bruckheimer Television and your brilliant collaboration with Stephen Gallagher: Eleventh Hour.

Eleventh Hour is the most thought-provoking and relevant show on television. The series is a perfect balance between intriguing and likable characters, fast-paced visual entertainment, and an insightful glimpse into moral and ethical scientific issues facing society today.

No other show pushes the envelope in this way, making its viewers ponder these very real issues facing society the way Eleventh Hour does.

Is this a formula for a successful show?

Eleventh Hour won its time slot nearly every Thursday, had continually rising audience test figures, and retained a steady average viewership of over twelve million people every week.

These statistics point clearly to the answer: Yes.

In continued support of JBTV, Warner Bros. Television, Stephen Gallagher, Rufus Sewell, Marley Shelton, and all the cast and crew involved, we at the Eleventh Hour Resurrection Campaign are currently hard at work driving for Eleventh Hour to be picked up by another network.

We want Eleventh Hour back.

We understand that the climate of American television is changing. It has been both a heartbreaking and exciting experience. It is accepted that changes need to be made across the board. However, Eleventh Hour cannot be a casualty of this transition. It cannot be discarded as a result of unfortunate timing. The concepts behind Eleventh Hour are vital and appropriate to our times, and, as a result, need to be shown. They are what the fans tune in for every week.

We are aware that financial or other considerations might play a role in bringing this series back to where it belongs. However, we would hope that your recent experiences, especially in cable production, would help you to modify factors as needed to make a return of Eleventh Hour feasible.

We send our heartfelt thanks to everyone at JBTV for bringing Eleventh Hour to our televisions. There is no doubt that it will continue to be successful with your involvement, and that the program's already steadfast fan base will continue to expand and grow.

Very sincerely,
